HIS MONEY TAKEN IN BOLD HOLD-UP

Newman Hartlaub Victim of Bold Highwaymen who Stop him Near Town and Take All the Money they Can Find. Make their Escape.

Blinded by a pocket flashlight in the hands of one highwayman while another held a revolver close to his head, Newman Hartlaub, a well known young farmer of near Littlestown, was held up about nine o'clock at night and relieved of $21.00 in cash. The bold robbers got away without their unfortunate victim getting anything at all that would lead to their identification.

Mr. Hartlaub is about nineteen years of age, a son of Frank Hartlaub, of Mount Joy township. He has been employed for some time by Harry Feaser, on his farm in German township, a short distance from St. John's church.

He had been spending the evening in Littlestown and, soon after he started for home, noticed two men in a stick wagon, close to his team. The night was so dark that distinguishing objects for more than a few feet was impossible, so that about all the young man had to let him know of their presence was the clatter of the horse's hoofs and the sound of the wheels on the new state highway from Littlestown for some distance out the road toward Taneytown.

He was driving rapidly at the time and Mr. Hartlaub had gone scarcely a half mile when he was surprised to find that he could not hear the other team. He did not believe they could have driven so much faster than he, to be out of hearing distance, but their whereabouts were suddenly explained when one of them grabbed hold of his own horse's bridle and threw the full glare of an electric flashlight right in his face. The night was so dark and they worked so quietly that Mr. Hartlaub did not hear them approach.

While the first man held the light and the horse, the other of the pair went toward Mr. Hartlaub, pulled out a revolver and demanded all of his money. The Adams County man was helpless before such an array and gave up all he had on his person, about twenty one dollars. In the blinding light of the flash lamp he could see nothing of the features of the highwaymen and, as soon as they had gotten his money, both again got into their little wagon and drove away at full speed.

They did not follow the main road but, instead, turned into an unfrequented lane, which leads through a field and then under a low bridge. Who they were or what became of them is a complete mystery, though their using the lane is thought to indicate that they were acquainted with that part of the country.

After their departure Mr. Hartlaub continued on to his home only a short distance away.

MR. BEALES TO ANSWER CHARGES

Congressman Brodbeck Likely to be Allowed Two Thousand Dollars to Conduct his Case. Action was Anticipated Says Kell.

Congressman-elect C. Wm. Beales is preparing an answer to the charges made against him by Congressman A. R. Brodbeck who has served notice that he will contest the seating of his opponent who was elected last November by a plurality of 742 votes.

Alfred A. Kell, ex-county chairman of the Republican party, in York County, made a statement in behalf of his committee in connection with the November election.

"This action on the part of Brodbeck was anticipated," said Mr. Kell. "Persons actively interested in Republican politics do not take the contest seriously. It is well known that Mr. Geesey, Congressman Brodbeck's secretary, was sending for persons to come to his office and endeavoring to secure affidavits from them. There is nothing to fear from any charge of failure to file accounts, as every item went in. It has always been the custom of the Republican county committee to adhere strictly to the law. The best evidence of this is in the detail of the reports of Treasurer L. C. Elliott. As an evidence that Brodbeck anticipated defeat and intended to file a contest, a letter was sent to the judges of election, over the name of County Chairman Atkins of the Democratic party, asking them to list all voters who received assistance. This letter was not prepared by Mr. Atkins but is said to have been written by Mr. Geesey."

County Chairman Atkins made this statement: "I am not interested in the contest personally or officially." The filing of the contest will not prevent Mr. Beales from assuming office at 12 o'clock noon, March 4, 1915. The constitution of the United States provides that each house shall be the judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its own members. As the sixty-fourth congress, of which Mr. Beales will be a member, is not due to convene until December, 1915, no action can be taken before that time.

Now that Mr. Brodbeck has served notice of his charges on the congressman-elect, Mr. Beales, under the law, has 30 days in which to file an answer to the contestant, admitting or denying the charges, and stating any other grounds on which he rests the validity of his election. When this has been done, the law provides 90 days from the time of the filing of the answer will be allowed for the taking of testimony. The contestant is allowed the first 40 days, the returned member the second 40, and the contestant then gets 10 days more for rebuttal.

The testimony must be filed with the clerk of the house of representatives, whose duty it is to order the contestant person and the returned member to appear before him in 20 days, at which time the testimony is opened in their presence and the parties must agree what portion of it shall be printed. The case then goes before the committee of elections of the house.

If Mr. Brodbeck should be seated, he would be allowed his salary for the time he was denied his seat, even though Mr. Beales had been drawing salary for that period. It has been the practice of the house in such contests to allow the contestant $2,000 for the expenses of making the contest.

FORGED NAME TO PURCHASE HORSE

Jesse Marks, Released from Huntingdon Reformatory Last July after Serving Eighteen Months, is Wanted Again.

Jesse Marks, of Heidlersburg, sentenced from Adams County to the Huntingdon Reformatory less than two years ago on a charge of the larceny of a buggy and harness, is now wanted for forgery as the result of a horse deal in which he figured last week.

About eight days ago he purchased a horse from Jacob Mummert, of Hampton, giving in part payment a note for $160, bearing the name of Adam Kimmel, of Round Hill, as the endorser. Mr. Kimmel heard about the note and going to the East Berlin National Bank examined the paper to pronounce the signature a forgery.

Efforts were made to find the young man but he has not been apprehended. The horse was found on Thursday near Marks' home. During the time it was in his possession he had the tail bobbed.

Marks' former offense was against Marks F. Bream, of York Springs. He was sentenced in January 6, 1913, to undergo a term in the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory as the result of his pleading guilty to the theft of Mr. Bream's buggy and harness. On July 22 last he was released from that institution.

END ARGUMENT BY CANDLES' LIGHT

By candle-light and in the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience the champion debaters of the two lower classes at college on Thursday evening argued the momentous question of the recall of judges. That the contest was not conducted from start to finish under the bright lights of the chapel was due to the prank of some mischievous student who tampered with the wires and threw the whole place into darkness just after the argument-in-chief was concluded.

The debate was the first of this year's series. Rivalry was keen and the spirits of all the students high. On one side of the chapel was located the cheering section of the Freshmen, on the other side the Sophomores' noisy adherents, while the upper classmen bunched together and showed where their sympathies lay. Every debater was greeted with applause and cheers and the affair was almost as exciting as a first class contest on Nixon Field.

The argument was carried on in creditable fashion, the Sophomores contending for a provision in the State Constitution which would allow the recall of judges while the Freshmen opposed it. The six speakers had finished their main addresses and Prof. Shipper, chairman of the evening, was about to announce the opening of the rebuttal when the entire chapel was suddenly enveloped in inky darkness. A hurry call was sent for the janitor but the cause of trouble could not be learned and individuals were sent out to hunt up all the candles they could find.

While they continued their quest, the cheering sections started afresh and old Brua, dark as midnight, resounded for some minutes with cheers, yells and songs. Finally enough of the candles were secured to enable the audience to see the speakers, and the arguments continued, while the flickering bits of wax gave out an uncertain light. The enthusiasm did not abate and the first year men went wild with joy when the judges announced a unanimous decision in their favor.

The team which won the $15 prize was composed of Messrs. Laird, McCullough and Bennett. They will next meet the Juniors. The vanquished were Messrs. Carlson, Venable and Bink. Hon. D. P. McPherson, Wm. Arch McClean Esq. and C. S. Duncan Esq. were the judges.

DRIVE GERMANS FROM ROULERS

Inlanders Are Forced From Important Town.

MORE ADVANCES BY FRENCH

Official Report Says Foe Was Driven Back at Many Points Along Battle Line.

London, Dec. 11.—Under the cover of a heavy artillery fire of the allies infantry attacks drove the Germans from their positions at Roulers, in west Flanders, and the allied forces have entered and occupied the town. This information was received in London in a dispatch from the Sluis correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad.

Roulers is twelve miles to the north east of Ypres and has been the center of violent fighting for the past several days. Here the British forces have been trying to drive a wedge in the German lines, and the information that they hold the town means a decided gain for the allies.

Reuter's Boulogne correspondent, who has just returned to Boulogne from Arrmentieres, says that Tuesday the Germans were driven out of Arrmentieres by the British and hurled back beyond artillery range. Arrmentieres is nine miles north west of Lille.

Hurling vast forces against the lines of the Germans along the center of the battle line in France and on the front in the Argonne, the allies are slowly gaining many important positions and are driving the Germans from their lines of trenches in that section of the western zone of war.

This information is contained in the French official communication and confirmed in the official dispatches from the French war office. The repeated and concerted attacks on the invaders launched against the lines along the Aisne and in the Argonne have forced the Germans to retire at many points and the allies report that they have gained many important strategic points in their series of advances. The most notable success recorded by the French is in the region of Le Quesnoy, where the Kaiser's forces were driven back almost half a mile.

In the Aisne region and on the heights of the Meuse, to the east of the Argonne, the French forces have advanced their lines and have inflicted severe losses on the enemy. Infantry attacks by the French, supported by heavy artillery fire, compelled the invaders to evacuate their strong line of trenches in that section, and the French have rushed reinforcements to that part of the battle zone in an attempt to cut the German line and force them to retire across their frontier.

The allies are slowly but surely gaining a superior position along the entire front of the battle line in Belgium and France, and from the tone of the dispatches from the official headquarters in Paris and London the time is almost ripe for a terrific drive against the Germans along the entire battle line, with the object of forcing the invaders to retreat across the frontier.

The French war office claims advances at several points and makes no mention of any reverses. For instance, near Le Quesnoy, gains of from 200 to 600 yards were made; in the Aisne and on the heights of the Meuse the French artillery mastered the batteries of the enemy, and near Rheims French cannon compelled the evacuation of trenches. Counter attacks were repulsed near Perthes and in the Argonne. In the latter locality new trenches were taken by the French.

In the region of Rheims, where there has been a heavy artillery duel raging for several weeks, the French claim that they have driven the Germans from their trenches and forced them to take up new positions further to the rear.

Following are the official bulletins:

FRENCH.
"Wednesday our aviators succeeded in dropping sixteen bombs on the station and the aviation hangars at Freiburg im Breisgau (Grand Duchy of Baden). In spite of a vigorous command they returned without accident.

"The day of Dec. 9 passed quietly in Belgium, as well as in the region of Arras, where the enemy made no attempt at a resumption of offensive operations.

"Further to the south, in the region of Le Quesnoy and around Andechy, we made advances varying from 200 to 600 yards. Our gains were maintained and consolidated.

"In the region of the Aisne and in Champagne there has been no change. The German artillery, over which we gained the advantage during the last few days, Wednesday evidenced increasing activity, but was again mastered by our heavy artillery. In the environs of Rheims the heavy French pieces compelled the Germans to evacuate several trenches. This evacuation was carried out under the fire of our infantry.

"In the region of Perthes the enemy, by means of two counter attacks, endeavored to recapture the intrenchments which he lost to us on Dec. 8. He was repulsed. The ground taken by us has been effectively protected.

GENERAL FALKENHAYN.

Acting Chief of Staff of the German Army.

"In all the Argonne region we have continued to make progress. We have occupied new trenches; repulsed with complete success six counter attacks and completed and consolidated the ground won from the enemy.

"On the heights of the Meuse there have been artillery engagements, in which we maintained a distinct advantage, and this in spite of the very great activity of the batteries of the enemy.

"In the forest of Le Pretre we have taken some new trenches.

"There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front as far as the Swiss frontier."

GERMAN.

"In the district of Souain the French confined themselves to heavy artillery firing.

"A renewed French attack on Rocroi and Courcelles did not make any progress. The attack broke down under the fire of our artillery, the enemy suffering heavy loss.

"Wednesday three of the enemy's aviators dropped about ten bombs on a town situated outside the range of operations, the town of Freiburg (Baden). No damage was done. The incident merely shows that an open town not situated within the range of operations has been attacked with bombs by the enemy."

CZAR HURLED BACK BY GERMAN DRIVE

Moving Against Warsaw From Three Points.

Berlin, by wireless, Dec. 11.—A German victory at Przasnysz, a town of Poland, north of the Vistula river, seventy-five miles from Warsaw, resulting in the capture of that place and 600 prisoners, was announced here.

The following official statement was issued:
"East of the Mazurian lakes, in East Prussia, only artillery encounters are taking place.

"In northern Poland our columns, advancing on the right bank of the Vistula, took Przasnysz by storm. Six hundred prisoners and some machine guns were captured.

"The attack along the Vistula river is being continued.

"In southern Poland all attacks made by the Russians have been repulsed."

The announcement of the capture of Przasnysz by the German forces is of more than passing importance. Przasnysz lies directly to the north of Warsaw, about seventy miles, and the advance of the Teutons to that point means that Field Marshal von Hindenburg has launched a new drive against the interior of Russia.

This move is taken to indicate that Von Hindenburg will concentrate on Warsaw from three points.

Battle Raging at Lowicz.

Petrograd, Dec. 11.—Night attacks by the Germans in the battle now going on in the region about Lowicz, Poland, have been repulsed by the Russians.

The German attacking columns were revealed by searchlights used by the Russians and the assaulting forces suffered serious losses, according to an official statement made at the war office.

Lowicz is being bombarded by the Germans and part of the town is in flames. The Kaiser's troops are fighting to gain possession of the railroad between Glogno and Lowicz, but their attempts have failed thus far.

Smyrna Shelled by Allies.

Athens, Dec. 11.—An official Mittele dispatch reports that French and British warships have bombarded the Turkish port of Smyrna and destroyed three of the forts there. The allies' fleet is blockading all the other Turkish ports in Asia Minor.

Dec. 18—College closes for the Christmas recess.

Jan. 15.—Basket Ball. W. Va., Wesleyan. College Gymnasium.

NURNBERG SUNK BY BRITISH FLEET

Cruiser Makes Fourth Warship Destroyed in Battle.

DRESDEN NOT ACCOUNTED FOR

Loss of Germans Is Placed at 2000 Men, Including Admiral Von Spee. Fight Lasted Five Hours.

London, Dec. 11.—The official press bureau announced that the German cruiser Nurnberg, one of the warships which escaped from the English in the engagement of Dec. 8, off the Falkland Islands, in the South Atlantic, has been sunk.

"A further telegram has been received from Vice Admiral Sir Frederick Sturdee, reporting that the Nurnberg was also sunk on Dec. 8, and that the search for the Dresden is still proceeding.

"The action lasted for five hours, with intervals. The Scharnhorst sank after three hours, and the Gneisenau two hours later. The enemy's light cruisers scattered and were chased by our cruisers and light cruisers. No loss of any British vessel is reported."

This news, coming so soon after the announcement that the British squadron under Admiral Sturdee had sunk the battle cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the light cruiser Leipzig, commanded by Admiral Count von Spee, has created the utmost enthusiasm.

A dispatch from Montevideo reported that the Nurnberg and Dresden, after leaving the scene of battle, were making for Port Santa Cruz, on the Argentine coast, 350 miles away, being closely pursued by the British.

The official announcement shows, however, that the German craft, which had a speed of twenty-three knots, was overtaken before proceeding far from the scene of the fight.

The Nurnberg was a ship of 3396 tons, 328 feet in length and 38 feet beam, with a draught of 15 feet. She was launched at Kiel in 1908. Her armament consisted of ten 4-inch guns, eight 2.1-inch guns and four machine guns, and she was equipped with two torpedo tubes.

She carried a complement of 322 men. As the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau carried 765 men each and the Leipzig 286 men, it is estimated that the loss to the German fleet resulting from this latest big sea engagement will total close to 2000 men.

Among the lost, it is believed, is Admiral von Spee, who was on the Scharnhorst when she went to the bottom.

The Dresden is now the only vessel known to have been in Von Spee's fleet which is unaccounted for. She is a sister ship of the famous cruiser Emden and was the flagship of the Germans in Mexican waters during the trouble with Huerta.

King George sent a personal message of congratulation to Vice Admiral Sturdee. Similar messages have been sent to him by Field Marshal Sir John French, the board of admiralty and the French minister of marine.

By its victory the British navy has almost cleared the seas of German warships. The Karlsruhe and the auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm are still operating against the allies' merchantmen in the South Atlantic. Naval experts assume that the British fleet will overtake and vanquish these two vessels.

CZECH SOLDIERS REVOLT

Refuse to Fight Serbs, Geneva Paper Hears.

Geneva, Dec. 11.—The correspondent of the Journal de Geneve, at Prague states that confirmation has been received there that Czech regiments No. 28, from Prague; No. 108, from Brno; No. 11, from Paskau, and the Eighth Landwehr, of Prague, which are fighting against Serbia, revolted on the battlefield.

This news, according to the correspondent, has created a deep impression in Vienna.

Big Guns For Russia.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Labelled "rush," thirty-six carloads of heavy caliber cannon and their complete equipment, shipped from South Bethlehem, Pa., consigned to the Russian government, have been sent into Canada via Buffalo. The consignment was forwarded immediately to Vancouver, B. C., whence the guns will be sent to Vladivostok. The order includes six of the largest guns ever turned out in this country.

EDISON TO REBUILD

Eleven Buildings of Plant Destroyed at Loss of $7,000,000.

West Orange, N. J., Dec. 11.—When the fire which swept the ten-acre manufacturing plant of the Thomas A. Edison companies here was extinguished, a hurried inventory of the damage revealed that eleven of the eighteen buildings had been destroyed, others had been damaged, and that the loss would reach $7,000,000. Seven thousand men are employed at the plant and half of these, it is estimated, will be out of work temporarily.

The entire force of employees was put to work removing the debris. Under the active supervision of Mr. Edison himself they began tearing down the concrete walls which had to be removed, while the embers were cooling. Immediate steps to rebuild have been taken.

At least one man perished in the flames. This became known with the finding of a charred body in the ruins of the film house where the explosion occurred which started the blaze. Two other men, both workmen, were reported missing.

While the flames were blazing high in the air, Edison, standing calmly with hands in pockets, said:

"Although I am more than sixty-seven years old, I'll start all over again."

The fire began with an explosion in the film finishing building in the center of the plant. The large quantity of film in the building burned with almost the rapidity of gunpowder. Its highly combustible nature made each roll flash like a quick fuse. Within a few minutes the film building was destroyed and the flames had spread to surrounding structures, which also were filled with highly inflammable materials.

TO SHELL MEXICANS IF WARNING FAILS

Firing Across to Border at Naco Must Stop.

Naco, Ariz., Dec. 11.—General Tasker H. Bliss arrived here and immediately took charge of the situation growing out of the Mexican battle just across the line at Naco, Sonora. He stated that the field artillery ordered to Naco would leave El Paso at once.

Threaten to Shell Mexicans.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Unless there is instant cessation of firing into American territory by the contending Mexican forces, opposite Naco, Ariz., they will be shelled by American troops.

This decision became known after a full discussion in Washington by President Wilson and his cabinet of the situation.

The batteries of three-inch guns ordered to Naco were sent there with such action in mind. No orders have yet been given for them to be turned loose against the Mexicans.

The state department will renew its warnings to the Mexicans to cease firing into American territory, and unless this warning is heeded it seems certain now that orders will be issued to Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, commanding on the Arizona border, to open fire with his big guns.

It has been decided that when Major General Funston finishes his two months' leave he will take command of the troops on the border, succeeding Brigadier General Bliss, who will come to Washington as the assistant chief of staff.

Baby Eats Poison and Dies.

Williamsport, Pa., Dec. 11.—Richard A. Greiner, thirteen months old, son of Harry Greiner, of South Williamsport, died as the result of taking poisonous medicine intended for his sister, who is seriously ill with pneumonia. The child climbed to a cupboard and got the pills, eating several of them.

Canada to Pray For Victory.

Czar Arrives at Tiflis.

Haydn and Church Music.

Carpani, the poet, once asked his friend, Haydn, "how it happened that his church music was almost always of an animating, cheerful and even gay description." To this Haydn's answer was: "I cannot make it otherwise. I write according to the thoughts which I feel. When I think upon God my heart is so full of joy that the notes dance and leap, as it were, from my pen, and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be easily forgiven me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

AFTER SICKNESS

A SPLENDID TONIC

Waynesboro, Pa. — “My system was all run down after a hard spell of bronchitis. It was hard for me to keep about. I had pains in my chest and took cold easily. I learned of Vinol from a friend and tried it. I soon felt better and now it has built me up and I am strong and well, and able to do my house work, which I had not been able to do for about three months before taking Vinol.

“You may publish this statement so others may know about Vinol and get help as I did.” — Mrs. Y. R. Horbough, Waynesboro, Pa.

Thousands of other intelligent people are constantly praising Vinol for restoring health and strength.

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, but a delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs, make pure blood and create strength.

If you are run-down and not as strong and energetic as you ought to be, try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that we will pay back your money if it fails to help you.

A Story

by Zona Gale

Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Publications, Incorporated
Copyright, 1912, by the Macmillan Company

Later in the day, happening in at Mrs. Mortimer Bates', Mrs. Winslow found Mrs. Moran there before her and asked what they had heard about Mary Chavah. "Something in that word 'about' pricks curiosity its sharp-est. Have you heard about Mary Chavah?" "Isn't it queer about Mary Chavah?" Each of these is like setting flame to an edge of tissue. Omit "about" from the language, and you have most gossip. At Mrs. Winslow's parson both women's eyebrows curved to another arc.

Mrs. Winslow told them.

"Ain't that nice?" said Mrs. Moran whole heartily. "I couldn't bring up another, not with my back. But I'm glad Mary's going to know what it is."

Mrs. Mortimer Bates was glad, too, but being by nature a nonconformist, she took exception.

"It's an awful undertaking for a single handed woman," she observed.

But this sort of thing she said almost unconsciously, and the other two women regarded it with no more alarm than any other reflex.

"It's no worse starting single handed than being left single handed," offered Mrs. Winslow somewhat ambiguously. "Lots does that's thrifty."

"Seems as if we could do a little something to help her get ready, seem's though," Mrs. Moran suggested; "I dunno what."

"I thought I'd slip over after supper and ask her," Mrs. Winslow said; "maybe I'd best go now—and come back and tell you what she says."

Mrs. Winslow found Mary Chavah sitting by her pattern bookcase cutting out a pattern. Mary's face was flushed and her eyes were bright, and she went on with her pattern, thrilled by it as by any other creature.

"I just thought of this," Mary explained, looking vaguely at her visitor. "It come to me like a flash when I was working on Mrs. Bates' basque. Will you wait just a minute, and then I'll explain it out to you."

Without invitation, Mrs. Winslow laid aside her coat and waited, watching Mary curiously. She was cutting and folding and pinning her tissue paper, oblivious of any presence. Alarm, suspense, doubt, solution, triumph, came and went, and neither woman was conscious that the flame of creation burned and breathed in the room as truly as if the product were to be acknowledged.

"There!" Mary cried at last. "See it—can't you see it—in gray wool?"

It was the pattern for a boy's top-coat, cunningly cut in new lines of seam and revers, with a pocket, a bit of braid, a line of buttons laid in as delicately as the factors in any other good composition. Mrs. Winslow inevitably recognized its utility, exclaimed and wondered.

"Mary Chavah, how did you know how to do things for children?"

"How did you know how?" Mary inquired coolly.

"Why, I've had 'em," Mrs. Winslow offered simply.

"Do you honestly think that makes any difference?" Mary asked.

Mrs. Winslow gasped in the immemorial belief that the physical basis of motherhood is the guarantee of both spiritual and physical equipment.

"Could you have cut out that coat?" Mary asked.

Mrs. Winslow shook her head. She was of those whose genius is for cutting over.

"Well," said Mary, "I could. It ain't having 'em that teaches you to do for 'em. You either know how or you don't know how. That's all."

Mrs. Winslow reflected that she could never make Mary understand, though any mother, she thought complacently, would know in a minute. The cutting of the coat did give her pause, but then, she summed it up, coat included. "Mary was queer" and let it go at that.

"I didn't know," Mrs. Winslow said then, "but what I could help some about the little boy's coming. Seven under fifteen does teach you something, you've got to allow. Maybe I could tell you something now and then. Or if we could do anything to help you get ready for him?"

"Oh," said Mary in swift penitence, "thank you, Mrs. Winslow. After he comes maybe. But these things now I don't mind doing. The real nuisance 'll come afterward, I s'pose."

Mrs. Winslow smiled in soft triumph. "Nuisance?" she said. "That's what I mean comes to you by having 'em. You don't think so much of the nuisance part as you did before."

"Then you don't look the thing in the face," said Mary calmly. "That's all about that."

"Well," Mrs. Winslow said pacifically, "when's he coming?"

"A week from Tuesday; a week from tomorrow," Mary told her.

Mrs. Winslow looked at her intently with the light of calculation in her narrowed eyes.

"A week from Tuesday," she said. "A week from Tuesday," she repeated. "A week from Tuesday," she exclaimed. "Why, Mary Chavah, that's Christmas eve."

It was some matter of recipes that was absorbing Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Moran when Mrs. Winslow breathlessly returned to them. They were deep in tradition and in method, its buttonhole relation. During the weary period when nutrition has been one of the two great problems the tremendous impulse that has nourished the world was alive in the faces of the two women, a kind of creative fire, such as had burned in Mary at the cutting of her pattern. Asparagus escalated with toast crumbs and butter was for the moment symbol of all humanity's will to keep alive.

"Ladies," said Mrs. Winslow, with no other preface, "what do you think? Mary Chavah's little boy is coming from Idaho with a tag on, and when do you s'pose he's going to get here? Christmas eve?"

"Christmas eve," repeated Mrs. Bates, whose mind never lightly forsook old ways or embraced a contretemps, "what a funny time to travel."

"Likely catch the croup and be down sick on Mary's hands the first thing," said Mrs. Moran. "It's a pity it ain't the spring of the year."

Mrs. Winslow looked at them searchingly to see if her thought too far out-distanced theirs.

"What struck me all of a heap," she said, "is his getting here then. That night, Christmas eve."

The three women looked at one another.

"That's so," Mrs. Moran said.

"Him—that child," Mrs. Winslow put it. "getting here Christmas eve, used to Christmas all his life, ten to one knowing in his head what he hopes he'll get. And no Christmas. And him with no mother. And her only a month or so dead."

"Well," said Mrs. Mortimer Bates, "it's too bad it's happened so. But it has happened so. You have to say that to your life quite often, I notice. I don't know anything to do but to say it now."

Mrs. Winslow had not taken off her cloak. She sat on the edge of her chair, with her hands deep in its pockets, her black knit "fascinator" fallen back from her hair. She was looking down at her cloth overshoes, and she went on speaking as if she had hardly heard what Mrs. Bates had interposed.

"He'll get in on the express," she said. "Mary said so. She don't have to go to the city to meet him. The man he travels with is going to put him on the train in the city. The little fellow'll get here after dark. After dark on Christmas eve."

"And no time for anybody to warn him that there won't be any Christmas waiting for him," Mrs. Moran observed thoughtfully.

"And like enough he'll bring a little something for Mary for a present," Mrs. Winslow went on. "How'll she feel then?"

"Ain't it too bad it ain't last year?" Mrs. Moran mourned. "Everything comes too late or too soon or not at all or else too much so, seems though."

Mrs. Bates' impulse to nonconformity had not prevented her forehead from being drawn in their common sympathy; but it was a sympathy that saw no practical way out and existed tamely as a high window and not as a wide door.

"Well," she said, "Mary ain't exactly the one to see it so. You'll never get her to feel bad about anybody not having a Christmas. I dunno, if it was any other year, as she'd be planning any different."

"No," said Mrs. Winslow thoughtfully. "Mary won't do anything. But we could."

Mrs. Bates' forehead took alarm—the alarm of the sympathetic hearer who is challenged to be doer.

"Do?" she repeated. "You can't go back on the paper at this late day. And you can't give him a Christmas and every other of our children not have any just because we're their parents and still living. There ain't a thing to do."

Mrs. Winslow's eyes were still on her overshoes. "I don't believe there's never 'not a thing' to do," she said. "I don't believe it."

Mrs. Bates looked scandalized. "That's nonsense," she said sharply, "and it's sacrilegious besides. When God means a thing to happen there's not a thing to do. What about earthquakes and—cancers?"

"I don't believe he ever means earthquakes and cancers," said Mrs. Winslow to her overshoes.

"Provent 'em, then," challenged Mrs. Bates triumphantly.

There's so much to us that one of us that found out about it and told the rest would get bounded out of town. But even now, I bet there's enough to us to do something every time—something every time, no matter what. And I believe there's something we can do about this little orphaned boy's Christmas. If we nip our brains on to it in the right place."

"Oh, dear," said Mrs. Moran. "Sometimes when I think about Christmas I almost wish we almost hadn't done the way we're going to do."

Mrs. Bates stiffened.

"Jane Moran," she said, "do you think it's right to go head over heels in debt to celebrate the birth of our Lord?"

"No," said Mrs. Moran. "I don't. But—"

"And you know nobody in Old Trail Town could afford any extravagance this year?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Moran. "I do; still—"

"And if part could and part couldn't, that makes it all the worse, don't it?"

"I know," said Mrs. Moran—"I know."

"Well, then," said Mrs. Bates triumphantly, "we've done the only way there is to do. Land knows, I wish there was another way. But there ain't."

Mrs. Winslow looked up from her overshoes.

"I don't believe there's never 'no other way,'" she said. "There's 'no way' another way."

"Not without money," said Mrs. Bates.

"Money," Mrs. Winslow said—"money. That's like setting up one day of peace on earth, good will to men, and asking admission to it."

"Mis' Winslow," said Mrs. Moran sadly, "what's the use of saying anything? You know as well as I do that Christmas is abused all up and down the land and made a day of expense and extravagance and folks overspending themselves. And we've stopped all that in Old Trail Town. And now you're trying to make us feel bad."

"I ain't," said Mrs. Winslow. "We felt bad about it already, and you know it. I'm glad we've stopped all that. But I wish we had something to put in its place. I wish't we had."

"What in time are them children doing?" said Mrs. Moran abruptly.

A Christmas Carol

By CHARLES DICKENS

I CARE not for spring. On its fickle wing Let the blossoms and buds be borne. He woe them again with his treacherous rain.

And he scatters them ere the morn. An inconstant elf, he knows not himself Nor his own changing mind an hour. He'll smile in your face, and with wry grimace He'll wither your youngest flower.

LET the summer sun to his bright home run. He shall never be sought by me. When he's dimmed by a cloud I can laugh aloud.

And care not how sulky he be. For his darling child is the madness wild That sports in fierce fever's train. And when love is too strong it doesn't last long.

As many have found to their pain.

A MILD harvest night by the tranquil light Of the modest and gentle moon Has a far sweeter sheen for me, I ween, Than the broad and unblushing noon. But every leaf awakens my grief As it lieth beneath the tree. So let autumn air be ever so fair, It by no means agrees with me.

BUT my song I troll out for Christmas stout. The hearty, the true and the bold. A bumper I drain and with might and main.

Give three cheers for this Christmas old! We'll usher him in with a merry din That shall gladden his joyous heart, And we'll keep him up where there's bit or sup.

And in fellowship good we'll part.

IN his fine honest pride he scorns to hide One jot of his hard weather scars. They're no disgrace, for there's much the same trace On the cheeks of our bravest tars. Then again I sing till the roof doth ring And it echoes from wall to wall— To the stout old wight fair welcome to-night.

As the king of the seasons all!

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Use it like a cold cream and dry Eczema eruptions right up.

The moment you apply bold-sulphur to an itching or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a renowned dermatologist.

This remarkable sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt relief, even in aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For many years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties and nothing has ever been found to take its place in relieving irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet in every instance, it immediately subdues the itching irritation and heals the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again manifests itself.

Any good druggist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur, which should be applied to the affected parts like the ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the Eczema is accompanied with torturous itching.

Imperial Rome.

There are various estimates of the population of ancient Rome. One figure given by Gibbon was 1,200,000. Baker, in his notes to Montesquieu's "Grandeur and Decadence of the Romans," gives good reasons for thinking that Rome's population was 2,000,000. The city had within its walls, in the time of Theodosius, 48,332 habitations, built, as a rule, with several stories.

SAYS U. S. IS NOT READY TO FIGHT

Wilson's Citizenry Soldiers Riddled by Gardner.

FITZGERALD WILL REPLY

Only 120,000 Militiamen in the Country, and Guns and Ammunition Are Lacking, Gardner Says.

Washington, Dec. 11. — War talk held the floor of the house of representatives, and the preparedness of the nation was the subject under discussion.

Representative Gardner, author of the resolution calling for investigation of the national defenses, assailed President Wilson for opposing his plan.

Mr. Gardner prefaced his remarks by announcing that he had introduced a bill to enact into a law Secretary Garrison's recommendation in his annual report to recruit the United States army to its full war strength.

A large portion of his speech Mr. Gardner devoted to an analysis of President Wilson's references to national defense in his address to congress on Tuesday.

He declared that the president had set up "a bogey man of straw," and that "if war were to break out today it would be found that our coast defenses have not sufficient ammunition for an hour's fighting."

"We must depend in every time of national peril upon citizenry trained and accustomed to arms," says the president," continued Gardner. "But how are we to get enough citizenry, as he calls us ordinary people? Does the president realize that there are only 120,000 militiamen in this whole nation? Does he understand that 23,000 of them did not even show up for annual inspection last year? Does he know that 31,000 did not appear at the annual encampment? Is he aware that 53,000, or nearly half, of this citizenry never appeared at the rifle range during the whole course of last year?"

"Where is this citizenry to get the weapons of war? According to the last report of the chief of staff we are short 316 field guns and 1,222,354 rounds of ammunition necessary to equip our militia in time of war. Last year General Wood asked for enough guns and ammunition to bring the United States up to the standard of Bulgaria. That modest demand was gently but firmly rejected."

"Even the president, with his transcendental ideas, cannot expect his trained citizenry to fight with their fists."

"Arbitration! What a grand word! All Carnegie has to show for his money is an unprepared England and an unprepared Belgium. Possibly I ought to accord him one other scalp to his tomahawk, although that scalp is made of imitation hair. The pacifists boast that their efforts have at least made every nation disclaim the responsibility for the war. Had Belgium, like Switzerland and Holland, put more confidence in her troops and less in arbitration and scraps of paper, she might today be free from the agony of invasion."

"Yet, every scrap of paper to which America puts her sign manual must be scrupulously redeemed. Come what may, we must fulfill our treaty obligations, even if every other nation on earth is false. But suppose that at some future time we find our path beset by nations with smaller consciences and larger howlitzers—what then? Shall we defend ourselves with mammoth rolls of Sunday school signatures, or shall we place our dependence in Chautauque lectures?"

Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the appropriations committee, in a brief reply, and obviously speaking for the administration, announced his intention of making a detailed statement as to the nation's preparedness.

"I shall make a statement on this question of preparedness," he said, "before this session of congress ends, and perhaps then some of these former secretaries who are seeking notoriety will not be so anxious to call attention to the annual reports they made when in office."

Steel Tonnage Falls.

New York, Dec. 11.—The unfiled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation on Nov. 30 totalled 3,324,592 tons, a decrease of 136,505 tons from October. The tonnage is the lowest recorded since May, 1911, but the decrease was smaller than expected.

Passengers Fall Twenty Feet.

Joplin, Mo., Dec. 11. — Seventeen persons were injured, four of them fatally, when a St. Louis & San Francisco passenger train was derailed four miles east of Joplin. All the coaches went down a twenty-foot embankment.

Willing to Reciprocate.

A New York little girl is of an appreciative and generous nature. This is the way in which she recently concluded her evening prayer: "I do thank thee, God, for all my blessings, and—and I'll do as much for you any time I can."

Christmas Pudding.

One tablespoonful of butter stirred with two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar until creamy; then add one cupful of sifted flour, to which add one and one-half level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add one cupful of milk and one cupful of day old bread crumbs crumbled very fine. Stir in half a cupful of seeded raisins and dried currants, one-fourth cupful of broken or chopped walnut meats, the grated rind of one lemon and a little grated nutmeg. Pour into a fancy mold and steam four hours. If the mold has a tube in the center the hole thus made in the pudding can hold half an egg shell in which the alcohol to burn may be placed, or it can be used to hold a few sprigs of holly. Serve with a liquid sauce.

What They Ate at Christmas in the Olden Time.

They served up salmon, venison and wild boars. By hundreds and by dozens and by scores. Hogheads of honey, kilderkins of mustard, Muttons and fatted heaves and bacon swine, Herons and bitterns, peacocks, swan and bustard, Teal, mallard, pigeons, widgeons and, in fine, Plum pudding, pancakes, apple pies and custard. And therewithal they drank good Gascon wine. With mead and ale and cider of our own. For porter, punch and negus were not known.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

SANTA CLAUS' GIFTS.

Have a large sack (about the size of a laundry bag) filled with inexpensive toys. Each boy or girl is allowed to plunge his or her hand into the bag (which is pulled together at the top with a drawing string) and to keep it there for a minute, feeling as many as possible of the toys contained in it.

Paper and pencils are then distributed, and each must write down the names of all the toys he thought he recognized in the bag.

Those having the best sets of answers receive the toys as prizes.

Of course the bag is opened and the contents spread out in order that all may see just what is there.

This is not a game for the very little tots, but any school boy or girl can play it.

The point which puts it beyond the very little folks is the fact that the names have to be spelled out.

Better Flashlight Powder.

European scientists have devised a new and better flashlight powder. It is made of peroxide of lanthanum, to which are added substances similar to those used in gas lamp mantles. It gives an excellent light and produces less than one-tenth of the smoke and fumes which make other powders so disagreeable and often dangerous to use.

The Change.

"It used to be," declared old Brother Bombershay, "dat when Brudder Mauley and his wife was uh-squabblin' dey had it up and down like a see-saw, sometimes one of 'em gittin' de best of it and den de yudder. But now, bless goodness, dey dess goes 'round and 'round like a merry-go-round, and nobody kin prognosticate which is ahead."—Puck.
